Patricia Carrillo

Patricia Carrillo has worked for KU’s Center for Public Partnership and Research for over a year and serves as the Program Manager for the Kansas Connecting Communities project, supporting community implementation and provider outreach. She has a BA in Anthropology and has completed Master’s coursework from the University of Denver in Anthropology, focusing her research on reproductive health and technologies. Patricia is passionate about maternal and child health and advocacy for patient choice and agency in biomedical and healthcare settings.

Jennifer Tozier

Jennifer Tozier is a Licensed Master Social Worker and a Licensed Master Addiction Counselor who has been a telehealth clinician at CKF Addiction Treatment for the last 2 years. Her prior work experience includes working in inpatient and outpatient addiction treatment settings. Jennifer has assisted CKF Addiction Treatment in the expansion of telehealth services by being the lead telehealth clinician in projects to include the Opioid Use Disorder Grant serving 65 Kansas counties, Kansas Connecting Communities to serve pregnant and postpartum women, and primary care clinic integration via partnerships with Hoxie Medical Clinic and Konza Prairie Community Health Center. Jennifer has been awarded an excellence in service award and has a passion for helping vulnerable populations live their happiest and healthiest life.
HRSA funded, five-year collaborative initiative between the Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE) Title V Maternal and Child Health (MCH) program and several state and local partners.

Goal: Increase provider capacity
- SEK Pilot (10 counties)

KCC aims to improve the mental health and well-being of pregnant and postpartum women through increased:
- screening,
- timely assessment,
- effective referrals, and
- reducing barriers to accessing treatment.
